BACK-FIRE AGAINST NEW DEAL STARTED BY PROMINENT MEN

To Fight What They Consider
Radical Tendencies of Administration

SMITH AMONG GROUP

Organization To Be Known
As "The American Liberty League"

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 23.—A conservative back-fire against certain —if not many— aspects of the New Deal, has been started by a group of wealthy and politically prominent figures in both the Democratic and Republican parties who have been vastly perturbed at what they consider radical tendencies of the Roosevelt administration.

Politicians gasped slightly today when they looked at the names of the sponsors of the new movement which is to be known as "The American Liberty League," for the sponsors are none other than:

Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate in 1928.

John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate in 1924.

Irene DuPont, industrialist, who supported Smith in 1929, and Roosevelt in 1932.

Nathan C. Miller, Republican ex-Governor of New York, now attorney for many corporations.

James W. Wadsworth, Republican Congressman from New York, ex-Senator, and now considered a foremost Republican presidential possibility for 1936.

The announced purpose of the new organization is:

"To defend and uphold the constitution of the United States and to gather and disseminate information that (1) will teach necessity of respect for the rights of persons and properties as fundamental to every successful form of government, and (2) will teach the duty of government to encourage and protect individual and group initiative and enterprise; to foster the right to work, earn, save, and acquire property and to preserve ownership and lawful use of property when acquired."

Search For Bandits

Turns To N. J. and Penna.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(INS)—The frantic hunt of police for the bandit gang that staged the daring $427,000 robbery of an armored truck in Brooklyn Tuesday, turned today to New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Somewhere in those two states were two powerful automobiles manned by swarthy complexioned men and containing money bags marked with the prints of the Federal Reserve Bank.

Three fashionably dressed girls accompanied the occupants of one of the cars, a Cadillac sedan which halted at a gasoline station in West Reading, Pa. The driver ordered three gallons of gasoline and one of the girls gave the attendant $10 in 25 cent pieces in payment of the 48 cent charges, at the same time requesting that the change be paid in bills.

The attendant noticed Federal Reserve money bags on the floor of the car and also reported seeing a case bulging with small coins.

In Ocean City, N. J., meanwhile, an open Cadillac parked briefly in an open air parking space and an attendant observed two Federal Reserve bags lying on the floor.

Occupying the car were a hunchback and two companions who subsequently drove away in the direction of Hammonton, N. J.

Police were frankly hopeful this morning that the two cars might contain some of the gang that perpetrated the most daring holdup in the city's history.

An alarm sent out at the request of the Reading police read as follows:

"Be on the lookout for a dark blue, four door Cadillac sedan, about 1932 model bearing New York registration plates. There are two men and three women in car, men about 30 or 35 years of age, dark wavy hair, wearing dark clothes, appear to be Italians. The women about 20 or 25 years of age, apparently Americans. All are well dressed."

"This car, stopped at the Crew Leick gas station in West Reading, Pa., and asked for three gallons of gasoline. The attendant noticed a handbag on the floor of the car that contained a lot of pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters. The gas bill was forty-eight cents and one of the women gave $10 roll of quarters in payment, receiving the change in bills. It is odd that they only purchased three gallons as the tank was nearly empty."

"It is believed that the occupants of this car may have been implicated in the $427,000 robbery in New York or some other robbery and are using this method to get rid of the change. The quarters were wrapped in an orange colored paper with the words 'Abbott Coin Counter, New York.' Any information notify State Police, Reading, Pa."

Regular use of the Courier classified column is economical and profitable.

Hunt Missing Co-ed

Janet Bowen White

Detroit police have been asked to aid in the search for Miss Janet Bowen White, 21-year-old University of Michigan co-ed and daughter of a wealthy family, who disappeared from Ann Arbor, Mich., while visiting a friend. Fear that the girl had taken her own life has been expressed by her brother, Lyman White.

SAME TEACHERS WILL RETURN TO TULLYTOWN

George Itterly Will Serve As Principal; Misses Ettinger
and Wells Back

140 PUPILS EXPECTED

TULLYTOWN, Aug. 23.—The board of directors of the public schools has announced that the same teaching staff will have charge of the schools. George Itterly will return as principal. Mr. Itterly will teach the sixth, seventh and eighth grades; Miss Elsie Ettinger, third, fourth and fifth grades; Miss Marion Wells, first and second. About 140 pupils are expected to attend the local schools.

The school buildings are being put in readiness for the opening of the school. Furniture is being repaired, and the rooms are being given a thorough cleaning. Other necessary repairs and adjustments are being made.

The Misses Mary and Lillian Liberator will spend a few days with relatives in Philadelphia.

Louis and Junior Milante, Philadelphia, are spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Liberator.

Duncan McLean, New York, has been spending the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. LaMar A. Doan.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barwis spent the week-end with relatives in Middletown, Conn.

Relatives and friends held a picnic at Walter Hill's, Wycombe, Sunday, the following being present: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill and family, Howard, Herbert, Anna, Edith, Dorothy and Cora; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wildonger and children, Lawrence, William and Francis, Easton; Mrs. William Lacey and sons Ronald and Wilbur, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Houser and son Melvin, and William Doan, Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. John Mulholland and daughters Marion and Lillian, and Samuel Robbins, Bath Road; Miss Marion Leedom, Hathboro; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schaffer and family, Wrightstown; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yagel and son Charles, Wilmington.

A "RAZZING" GOOD TIME

(By "The Stroller")

There are few things in the lower end of Bucks County that claim the attention of the populace of a community more than the annual baseball game between the benedictines and the single men at Huleville.

The big event for 1934 took place Tuesday night, and young and old were out—not to root for favorites, but to cheer good plays, razz the bad ones, and enjoy the alleged "cheating" on the part of both sides.

The umpire must have a strong constitution, and a hard conscience, and in spite of Umpire Charles Afflerbach's (Jr.) alleged favoritism for the married men, the "free-footed" lads are generally believed to be the winners. Neither side seemed quite certain at the finish what the result was, but "a good time was had by all."

Although some of the "oldsters" hadn't handled a bat or ball for a year or more, they did themselves credit, and on the previous evening one benedict was seen getting his muscles limbered up by wielding a scythe, while some of the others sported on the diamond to get in trim.

More of such games would provide good comedy, fine exercise, and good fellowship for more communities.

REPRIMAND TO POLICE OFFICER JUST, SAYS MAYOR STOCKHAM, AND THE CASE IS CLOSED SO FAR AS HE IS CONCERNED

Morrisville Executive Sees No
Reason For Reopening
Of the Case

SCORES THE AFFIDAVIT

Declares Officer Lucky To Escape With Such Light
Punishment

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 23.—Defending his decision in the case of Officer Joseph Lebegern, of the Morrisville police force, who was found guilty last week of conduct unbecoming a public servant and given a reprimand, Mayor Thomas B. Stockham declared last night that he saw no reason for reopening the matter.

Some friends of Lebegern think the case should be reopened because of a second affidavit by Matthew Robinson, colored. In his first affidavit, Robinson swore that he bought drinks for Officer Lebegern while the latter was on duty. The second affidavit sworn before Justice of the Peace Nolan, sets forth that the original affidavit was false and obtained by force. The second affidavit also cites that Robinson did not understand what he was doing when he signed the first affidavit because of the fact that he cannot read or write.

"I see no reason why I should reopen Officer Lebegern's case," Mayor Stockham stated. "The fact that Robinson has signed a second affidavit repudiating an earlier one does not alter the facts. My decision was not based solely on Robinson's testimony against Officer Lebegern; I had other evidence in my possession attesting to his guilt."

"The fact is that in merely reprimanding Lebegern, instead of suspending him or recommending his dismissal, I was very lenient with him. I had ample proof before me that he not only drank while on duty, but also unnecessarily abused a prisoner much smaller than himself."

"Robinson's second affidavit does not disprove his original one. If he is willing to swear to a false statement at one time, then it is difficult to see why a second and vastly different affidavit should receive serious consideration."

"Robinson swore to his first affidavit in the presence of Justice of the Peace William H. Kunsman and Councilman Elwood Kohl. There was evidence before me at Lebegern's trial to show that this affidavit was read to him twice before he signed it. I have since checked this point with Dr. Kunsman and he has corroborated it."

"Officer Lebegern seemed satisfied in my office as to the treatment accorded him. If his friends would like to have the case reopened, he would be justified in saying: 'Save me from my friends.' Four of them were at his hearing as witnesses and all were given the privilege of telling their stories."

CAPTURE CONVICT WHO ESCAPED PHILA. PRISON

Highway Patrolmen Pick Up
Fugitive From The Holmesburg Jail

MAY GET LONGER TERM

LANGHORNE, Aug. 23.—Less than two hours after his escape from the Holmesburg Prison yesterday afternoon, Benny Walker, 25 years old, who was serving a sentence of five to ten years on a criminal assault charge, was picked up at Parkland by members of the South Langhorne Highway Patrol.

Walker made a getaway while working on the prison farm at about 3:45 o'clock, and shortly before 5 o'clock a resident of Penn Valley sent word to the highway patrol that a suspicious character was loitering about his place. Three patrolmen under Corporal Evans searched the woods in the vicinity but found no one.

The officers then started out on the highway and they picked the fugitive up at Parkland. Walker still wore the white shirt and cream trousers uniform, but he had ripped off the identifying black stripes.

Walker was taken to the barracks and Warden Craven, of the Holmesburg Prison, was notified. Officers took the convict back to the institution.

Walker will probably face an additional term for his getaway.

EXCURSION TO SHORE

Daily excursion trips to Asbury Park and other nearby seashore resorts are being offered daily by the Pennsylvania Railroad, at exceptionally low fares. Yesterday's advertisement for same in the Courier gave wrong time for trips, the correct time for trains leaving Bristol each morning being 7:57 daylight saving time.

DOYLESTOWN GIVEN NEW STREET SIGNS

Received As Donation From
The Keystone Automobile Club

TWO NAMES CHANGED

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 23.—A donation of 190 new street signs was gratefully accepted Monday night by Doylestown Borough Council at the monthly meeting, the donor being the Keystone Automobile Club.

Councilman Bartram H. Moore and his police committee was authorized to have a sample brace and metal post made up and to have one of the signs erected before final adoption of the type of post and brace is made.

The signs will be placed at every street intersection in Doylestown. They are made of metal and are two feet wide and approximately seven inches high. The background of the sign is white and the lettering is in blue.

Among the signs are two street names that have been changed to a somewhat more dignified degree—Garden Alley to Garden Lane, and Printer's Alley to Printer's Lane. Council President A. Harry Clayton expressed disapproval of the fact that the names of the two streets had been changed since they were accepted by the Borough under the original names. It was decided, however, that the new names were more pleasing to hear, and that since the signs had been donated, no change will be made at this time.

Councilman Moore also brought up the proposition of purchasing a new police car for the local police department. He stated that the car now in use has traveled over 40,000 miles in patrol work in Doylestown. It was decided to have bids for a new police car submitted at the September meeting of Council.

AMY COMPLETES FIRST TRIP

Paris, Aug. 23.—Completing her first flight as a regularly employed pilot on the London-Paris cross-channel service, Amy Mollison, famous British aviatrix, landed at LeBourget airport, in a blinding rain-storm this afternoon. She was 42 minutes late, delay being attributed to unfavorable weather on the channel route.

HOLD FOUR SUSPECTS

Scranton, Aug. 23.—Four men taken into custody here as suspects in connection with the $427,000 armored truck hold-up in Brooklyn, were in jail today in default of $10 fines, imposed by a magistrate on vagrancy charges. After several hours of questioning police officials indicated they no longer believed the men were connected with the hold-up.

The men gave their names as: Santa Morato, 26; Nicholas DeMoro, 21; Arthur Ciccone, 20; and Anthony Amato, 21, all of Brooklyn.

NO ARRESTS IN LABBATT CASE

London, Ontario, Aug. 23.—Predictions of "imminent" arrests in the John S. Labbatt kidnapping mystery have failed to materialize, and suspicion grew today that Canadian police may not be as close on the heels of the men who snatched the wealthy brewer as the public has been led to believe.

For the past 48 hours Dominion newspapers have been running first-page stories purporting to contain "inside" information and indicating arrests were only a matter of hours, but the hours have passed, and with them the "deadline" for arrests, and still nobody has been taken into custody.

ENGINEERS OBJECT TO PLAN

Harrisburg, Aug. 23.—The Engineering Society of Pennsylvania today had written Eric H. Biddle, state relief chief, protesting proposed work relief projects contemplating hiring of jobless draftsmen, architects, and engineers to prepare and draw specifications and blue-prints for construction projects. Such a procedure would endanger jobs of other men in similar work who are now employed, according to the letter.

TO ESTABLISH TWO NEW GASOLINE STATIONS HERE

Ice Cream Manufacturer Purchases Building Which He Now Occupies

TO RUN BOWLING ALLEY

Establishment of two new gasoline service stations here and the purchase of a large corner building marked the real estate activity for the past week.

The property located at Jefferson avenue and Pond street, owned and occupied for a number of years by Wesley Birt, trading as the Modern Plumbing and Heating Company, has been leased by the Richfield Gasoline Company.

The lot is to be cleared of all the present buildings and a modern service station with greasing pits are to be installed. Bulk tanks are also to be placed underground.

The C. S. Wetherill Estate is establishing a gasoline service station in front of the Weed Chevrolet agency on Farragut avenue. This station is to handle Conoco gasoline with the Wetherill firm as the distributors.

Francis J. O'Boyle, ice cream manufacturer, Farragut avenue and Monroe street, has purchased through the Eastburn & Blanche firm, the property which he now occupies as a place of business and the stores adjoining.

Mr. O'Boyle will conduct the bowling alleys on the second floor of the building.

LEGION PICNIC

The Robert W. Bracken Post, American Legion, and the Legion Auxiliary will hold their annual picnic at Burlington Island Park, Saturday. All members and their families are urged to attend and make this a perfect day. Ice cream will be served, and members will take box lunches. Prizes will be offered in the many games planned.

Maxie Woos Ex-Wife

Irked by his quiet surroundings, Max Baer, world heavyweight champion and self-admitted "perfect lover", has departed from Lake Tahoe, Cal., for Los Angeles where he intends to renew the courtship of his former wife, Dorothy Dunbar, one-time motion picture actress. Miss Dunbar, who divorced Baer in 1933, complaining he neglected her, is shown above with Maxie in a happier day.

TO OPERATE BUSES ON MORRISVILLE CAR ROUTE

Delaware River Coach Company To Begin Service On Sunday, August 26th

FARE NOT ANNOUNCED

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 23.—Notices were being distributed here yesterday to the effect that the Pennsylvania-New Jersey Railway Company will run buses between Morrisville and Trenton, and Yardley and Trenton, beginning Sunday, August 26th.

The schedule of the Morrisville buses has been changed from 15 minutes to 20 minutes, with the route to remain the same as the trolleys with the exception that it will include Delaware avenue, Washington street, to Bridge street, and across the Lower Bridge. Nothing was stated in the notice pertaining to the fare.

The announcement read as follows: Arrangements have been completed with Delaware River Coach Company for the operation of motor buses between Trenton, Morrisville and Yardley, to replace the present trolley service.

Bus service will start on Sunday, August 26th, from Central Bus Terminal, Nos. 17-19-21 West State street, Trenton. Trolley service will be continued to September 2nd, to acquaint our patrons with the change, but, after September 2nd, will be discontinued.

The bus route to Yardley will be over the Upper Bridge and follows the present trolley route.

The bus route to Morrisville will be the same as the trolley route except that it will extend to Delaware avenue, then over Washington and Bridge streets, crossing the Lower Bridge.

Bristol and Philadelphia buses will run out of Central Bus Terminal instead of Stacy-Trent Terminal.

Schedules to Yardley and Philadelphia will be the same as at present and local buses will run to Morrisville every 20 minutes.

To Prosecute Children For Disturbing Church Services

Complaint has been lodged with the police about the actions of children outside of the Credit Memorial Church of the First Born on Pond street.

It is reported that the children throw stones at the windows and on one occasion a stone went inside the church and narrowly escaped hitting two men sitting in the pulpit.

The doors of the church are opened by the children who then run away after shouting and in other ways disturbing the service.

It has been stated by the church authorities that unless this disturbance stops immediately, they will obtain the names of those guilty and prosecute to the full extent of the law.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Baner and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Baner, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Kelly, and family, Holmesburg, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Minster, Sr., Sunday.

Miss Dorothy Carr and Miss Marie Carr, South Philadelphia, were guests of Mrs. W. Amick, over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mahorter, Holmesburg, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Whyte over the week-end.

Mrs. Stanky and Miss Helen Thacker, Olney, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Luciana, Sunday.

TRUCK GARDENING IN BUCKS COUNTY IS THIRD LARGEST

Most of It is Done in Lower End of The County

CULTIVATE 12,000 ACRES

Between 500 and 600 Laborers
Employed on
Two Farms

The third industry in size in Bucks County is truck gardening, according to William F. Greenawalt, Bucks County Farm Agent.

"Twelve thousand acres of land are farmed for commercial trucking purposes within the county. One-half of all the asparagus produced in Pennsylvania is grown in the lower end of the county, with more than 1300 acres under cultivation. The second largest trucking industry is raising sweet corn, with 4041 acres devoted to its production," said the county agent.

Truck farms that are recognized in the East as outstanding are the Starkey and King farms in lower end of the county. The former has 1500 acres under production, and the latter now contains 2,000, employing about 500 or 600 laborers.

These laborers take Saturday as a holiday instead of Sunday because of the perishable nature of the produce.

Some other highlights concerning farming and agriculture in Bucks County are that 3505 acres are devoted to potatoes, and that Bucks County has 704,691 chickens.

Vegetables alone claim 12,000 acres for production, exclusive of the farmer's private gardens.

County agent Greenawalt challenges anyone to find any county more productive or richer in natural beauty than Bucks County.

Only 57 per cent of the 4360 farms in the county are mortgaged, claims Greenawalt. "I question if that record can be beaten in any other line of business."

Explaining the farm situation in Bucks County, Mr. Greenawalt pointed out farming in the county is carried on in a diversity of types. "The dairy cow brings in the largest income, and has helped to pay off more mortgages than most of us will ever know. There are 27,786 head of cattle in Bucks County. Poultry, ranking second in farm income, is the second largest source of farm revenue. Bucks County ranks third in the poultry industry in Pennsylvania. Lancaster and York counties hold first and second place, respectively."

Swears Out Warrant Charging Man With Forgery

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 23.—George Taylor, of Penn Valley Road, Fallington, swore out a warrant yesterday afternoon, before Justice of the Peace Neal Nolan, for the arrest of John Bickowsky, on the charge of forging his name on Morrisville Trust Company checks.

Bickowsky, who at one time worked for Taylor, had cashed three checks, using Taylor's signature, the complainant stated. Two of the checks were made out for $24.49, and were cashed by the Robert Morris Hotel, of this place, and Isaac Layne and Son, of Trenton. The third check, for $23.69, was cashed by Harry Gershanowitz, of 697½ South Warren street, Trenton.

Herman Margerum, Jr., and Harry Bunting, employees in the local bank, examined the checks yesterday morning after they had been sent through the mail from the Philadelphia Clearing House. Both of the employees noticed a difference in the signature. The first name of George had been abbreviated to "Geo." and the writing was written heavier than is Taylor's custom. Taylor was notified, and then proceeded to swear out the warrant.

Bickowsky had been in the bank Monday in an attempt to cash another check, but when asked for identification, he walked out.

DEMAND PODERJAY EXTRADITION

Vienna, Aug. 23.—A formal demand for the extradition of Ivan Poderjay, dashing Yugoslavian cavalry officer, who married the missing woman lawyer, Agnes Tufverson, in New York last December, was presented to the Austrian government today by the United States legation. His immediate extradition was asked on the charge of perjury, based on records showing he married Miss Tufverson under false pretenses.

Poderjay was accused of perjury on the grounds he represented himself as an unmarried man, when actually at the time of his marriage to Miss Tufverson he was already the husband of a woman known as Madam Marguerite Ferrand.

Poderjay and Madam Ferrand have been held here for months while American and Austrian officials pursued joint and separate investigations into the mysterious disappearance of the brilliant young attorney who became his wife.

Miss Tufverson disappeared at a time when she was supposed to leave New York for a honeymoon trip with Poderjay. He sailed alone.

YOUTH AND PLAY

Boys will be busy and if they are not busy doing good it is a foregone conclusion they will be busy doing evil. This suggests to society that juvenile delinquency ills must be treated by the antidote of healthful activities which leave the irrepressible age no time to get into trouble.

The Boy Scouts movement, boys' clubs, playgrounds, school athletics and summer camps are designed to give youth something to do that will develop it mentally, physically and morally. Boys reached by these institutions and movements have no time to do evil and run no risks of getting into bad company.

In this matter society must choose between two things. It can renounce responsibility for its youth and then pay for the maintenance in reformatories, prisons and other institutions of the victims of its indifference, or it can pay for playgrounds, gymnasiums, athletic fields and boys' organizations and minimize the operating costs of its penal and corrective institutions.

Youth is ever bubbling over with excess energy and must have an escape valve. If given the opportunity of working it off through healthful channels the chances are favorable that it will escape the paths of evil.

The wise community considers well spent the money necessary to provide its youth with proper facilities for play.

REVIVAL OF LOG CABINS

More log cabins were built in 1933 than in any other year since 'Abe Lincoln's day, according to the best available information, but that doesn't mean that the standard of living has suffered a setback to the extent that would indicate, which is the conclusion the outside world will jump to if it reads that statement.

No doubt necessity was the builder of a few of these cabins. The wilds of the gold states are overrun with prospectors with nothing else to do, and some of them no doubt, have reverted to the primitive home of logs and mud.

But the bulk of the 1933 vintage of log cabins are the summer playhouses of urbanites who like to return to nature on hot nights, summer week-ends and holidays. Nor did many of them hew their logs with their own hands. The log cabin has become a type of construction in wide demand for fishing and hunting camps where timber is cheap and available.

The two things that cause most complaining are misfortune and listeners.

If criminals are stupid, how does a bandit pick out the person dumb enough to tote $400?

SYNOPSIS

Caroline Rutledge and Howard Dunsforth become engaged despite the opposition of their fathers, Philip Rutledge and Henry Dunsforth, who have been enemies for years. Then Henry ruins Philip in business and Caroline breaks her engagement when it is obvious that money means more to Howard than love. He explained he would be disinherited if they married and now that Caroline had no money, he did not see how they could manage. The Rutledges leave "Hawthorn", their luxurious home, and go to live in a poor section of town. Alva, Caroline's mother, collapses from shock and fatigue. Their neighbors, Malcolm Stuart and his mother, come to the family's assistance. Malcolm is an inspector at the Rutledge factory. Though Philip, himself, is helpless in their adversity and leaves the burden on Caroline's shoulders, he snobbishly resents the idea of accepting aid from "these people" as he terms the Stuarts. One day, Philip warns Caroline: "You must be careful of that Stuart boy, my dear. It's quite possible that he would be presumptuous enough to fall in love with you." Malcolm overhears the remark. Caroline tells Malcolm not to mind her father for he never thought any boy was the right one for her, adding: "I shouldn't want you to fall in love with me because I couldn't return it." Their eyes meet. Caroline's pity for Malcolm prevented her from realizing how perfect had been the fusion of their minds in that one glance. Never had there been between her and Howard one moment so electric and breathless as this.

CHAPTER XIV

There was no party at the Rutledge house that night. And by twelve o'clock the next day Caroline had not seen Malcolm since he walked out of her kitchen with his tools in his hand and trouble in his eyes.

Concern for him wiped out all other thoughts from her mind. At noon she saw him leaving his home on his motorcycle and felt relieved that he was away. She could go now and plan the landscaping of the back yard without chance of a meeting with him. She wanted to avoid him.

The back yard had been an eyecore to her. But it was well fenced in and she knew she could make a charming spot of it in time. "This year," she said to herself as she stood surveying its barrenness, "we'll brighten it up with nasturtiums and get our backgrounds with castor-oil plants, and flowering vines, but next year..."

She noticed her mother to come outdoors with her and tried to interest her in planning the garden, but Mrs. Rutledge was depressed, seeing only in her mind the lovely gardens at Hawthorn House. Caroline would not be discouraged. She spent the rest of the day drawing sketches and poring over seed catalogues that she got from Mrs. Stuart.

The Stuarts had a pretty place. "All Malcolm's doing," her mother declared. "I'm sure he'll let you have all the cuttings you want."

It was not until the following morning when she thought with a pang: "This is the day of the sale," that Caroline remembered she had not gone for her Currier and Ives prints.

"If you're going to town this morning," she said to her father at breakfast, "I'll drop you off. I'm going on to Hawthorn House to get something I left there."

They did not start, however, until the afternoon. The sedan developed a mysterious trouble which required several hours for a mechanic to locate and correct.

Caroline arrived at Hawthorn House while the sale was in progress. She entered, unrecognized, by a side door. To reach the main stairs she was compelled to go through the library. The doors of all the rooms were thrown wide open. People roamed about through the spacious house as though it were a museum. Caroline could hear the auctioneer's voice in the drawing room. It was like a challenge to her. She paused, a hand on the mahogany newel. Hot resentment fired against her father, her mother, herself, that in a week they had done nothing, had known nothing to do, to save these fine old things that could belong to no one else in the world as they belonged to the Rutledges. Her Grandfather Rutledge had said they were like some family bibles. In the scars and worn places could be read a record of the activities of the family; in the patina of the furniture and the mellowness of the furnishings, its grace and culture.

Into Caroline's line of vision as she stood there listening came a girl in a bright red sports suit. The girl had fair hair set in tight curls that framed a spee of a hat with a pom-pom at its apex. Her eyes at a distance looked enormously large and dark, due to artificial eyelashes. Her health-revealing cheeks were as pale as white powder could make them, but her lips were vivid, the exact shade of her costume, as, in fact, were her finger nails. She was not tall, but she was shapely in a sturdy, wholesome style.

Caroline knew her. Everyone knew her, knew that she had been christened Minnie and had changed the name to Gwendolyn. This change was typical of her. Caroline had heard other girls say she had delusions of grandeur.

Her parents were very well to do, but plain and substantial citizens, into whom Gwendolyn was constantly trying to inject greater social ambitions. Papa Hoffmann did not belong to the Country Club, the Squash and Racquet Club, the Rod and Gun, as she would like him to. But he was known and respected by many of the men she would have him emulate.

Gwendolyn wanted to forget his start in business as a grocery clerk. It was her wish to fade out the family background of foodstuffs and replace it with one filled with a hurriedly-grown genealogical tree emblazoned with time-misted crests and impressive coats of arms.

Regarded with amusement for her pretensions by the elite of the town she was, nevertheless, accepted by them to a limited extent. Her donations to their charities and her interest in their Junior League activities were welcomed, but she was left out of the intimate little parties attended only by those of the innermost circle of the society to which she aspired.

Of this circle Caroline was leader. Gwendolyn envied her, hated her because she believed that Caroline had turned thumbs down on her.

And now she was buying Caroline's pet pictures—her treasured Currier and Ives!

Caroline saw one of the pictures in Gwendolyn's hands, saw her put it down on a table where the others lay. Instantly she moved toward the drawing room. Gwendolyn was speaking to her companion, a girl Caroline scarcely knew. Her voice was raised. As Caroline drew near she heard her say: "And I'm going to have these. Aren't they delicious? I brought them down myself from my bedroom. The auctioneer's going to sell them with the stuff down here so I won't have to wait around."

Wait around! In a house that had never before been open to her! Caroline's eyes blazed. Her indignation appeared to make itself felt by the other two girls. They looked at her. Gwendolyn hesitated, then exclaimed coolly, "Oh, good afternoon, Miss Rutledge. I didn't expect to see you here. It's well, she interrupted herself with a giggly laugh, "... it must be terribly hard for you. I mean, losing just everything."

Caroline's indignation turned to an icy anger. "Really?" she said with an insolent drawl. "Your presence is a surprise to me, too, Miss Hoffmann. I had no idea you could possibly care for old family possessions such as ours." She smiled and moved on, making her way through the throng the auctioneer was haranguing, to his side.

"Just a moment, please," she said haughtily when he paused at sight of her there. "I am sorry to interrupt but there are some pictures here that I do not wish sold. Have you a man about to carry them out to my car? I'm Miss Rutledge, I think you know."

"Yes, yes, sure, Miss Rutledge, I know you. But can't the matter wait? I don't like to stop right now..."

"The pictures belonged upstairs," Caroline said coolly. "I came in time to have them taken off the list. But they have been brought down here—through some glittering persuasion, I dare say. But they are not to be sold. They are my personal property. If you have no one to carry them away for me I shall take them myself."

Someone shoved at her elbow. It was Gwendolyn, her eyes bright with ire as Caroline's had been. "You can't let those pictures go!" she fired at the auctioneer. "I've practically bought them, you know that. You promised to put them up right, and you'd sold that old square piano."

"Please, Miss Hoffmann..." the auctioneer began placatingly... "just a moment."

"Well, is this a sale, or isn't it?" Gwendolyn demanded. "I spent a lot of time picking out those pictures and I offered to buy them outright. I think you just wanted to make me bid on them to boost your old auction. And you're not going to hand them over to anyone else now."

"But, Miss Hoffmann, this is not a forced sale," the harassed man reminded her. "I'll see what can be done."

Caroline felt a second, but lighter, contact on her elbow. She turned quickly and saw that a group of her friends who had not known were there surrounded her. "Shall we give her the bum's rush?" one of them whispered to her. "Come on, Caro," another urged, "she's sunk. We've got the pictures outside."

Caroline slipped away with them while the auctioneer continued to argue with Gwendolyn.

"Where's your car?" someone outside asked her. "The pictures are under a bush near the drive. We sneaked them while everyone was rushing for ringside seats to see you and dear Gwendolyn snail it."

Caroline forgot they had never seen the sedan. When she led them to it they frankly spoke their minds about it. And with one voice all demanded to be driven places in it. Caroline could not refuse. Besides, their light-hearted razzing was good medicine for her. She felt cheerier than she had for over a week.

As they climbed in the young man with the pictures in his arms said: "I'm tired. I'll hold these babies. They don't look so hot to me."

"They weren't hot to Gwendolyn either," one of the girls remarked. "She wouldn't have wanted them if she hadn't heard someone say it was funny they were there, because Caroline was crazy about them."

"She probably wanted to hang them on the family tree and say they were ancestors," another girl opined.

"Who died before they grew up," a third added.

"Yeah!" the cynic among them drawled. "She may be dizzy, but I'll lay a hundred to one she walks off with the best man."

"Taken," a girl agreed. "A hundred to one what?"

"You know."

"Fresh. Let's take him out to the club, Caroline, and practice drives off his bean. He'll never be missed."

"Honey, if it's you with the club I never will be."

"I was thinking of your demise, sweetheart, but you're right too."

The country club was an idea—Caroline found herself heading toward it. It so happened that of the group all but the girl who had suggested going to the club were out of town students who had cut classes to attend the sale at Hawthorn House. "For the express purpose of lending moral support, since we positively haven't a red copper amongst us," one of them had assured her. None of them, the local girl included, was related to a member of the club. Mr. Rutledge's generosity usually had covered the hospitality afforded Caroline's friends there. She had no thought now other than to reward these five for their loyalty. A week is a short time in which to learn to be poor.

It seemed to her, with their laughter and jokes to lift her spirits, something in the nature of a lark to drive to the swanky club in the noisy car. But the lark soon turned into a dreary piece of realism.

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

DEFINITE, NEW STYLE IS BEING MANIFEST IN HAIRDRESSING

By Nadia De Beaud

(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)
PARIS — (INS) — There is a definite new style in hairdressing, which has taken on some most original and amusing forms as I have noted at different smart gatherings. The general principle is that hair must be bunched up on the head, a style which permits the wearing of aigrettes on the head, the new kink of the chic society woman.

For example, at the Night Fete of Longchamps, Mme. Alvaro Munoz, of Chicago, had her black hair covered with a bright polish, taken up and finished in a scroll on top of the head. As she wore with this a gown of very fine, shiny black straw, the effect was most strange and oriental. Other women had the hair simply pulled up with cascades of close little curls on top, such as the Baroness Nixon, who had red aigrettes trailing downwards.

RUSSIAN BRIDE IS GARBED IN BLUE OF HYACINTH SHADE

By Nadia De Beaud

(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)
PARIS — (INS) — A most picturesque ceremony united a Russian bride, Mme. Olga de Belaieff to Mr. Arthur Moulton, owner of several most picturesque chateaux in France, which he has restored with lavish exactitude. At the civil ceremony, the bride, who is very blond and pretty, wore a hyacinth blue gown with a three-quarter length coat, bordered in sable.

At the church wedding, held in Moulton's chateau at La Verriere, near Paris, she had a white satin sheath gown with a short train and a diamond diadem to hold her veil. The ceremony was held according to Russian rites, the Russian Church choir being present.

The couple first met at Palm Beach, where the courtship started. After spending the summer in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Moulton plan to sail for New York at the end of September to remain all winter.

FLUTED SLEEVES ARE FEATURED ON GOWN OF MRS. FRANK J. GOULD

By Nadia de Beaud

(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)
PARIS — (INS) — A reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Eric Allatini drew many prominent Americans in Paris. The house designed by Mallet-Stevens is the last word in modernity, with quaint cosy corners and verandas at different heights. The walls of the huge living room are covered with leather. The hostess wore a pastel colored chiffon gown.

Mrs. Frank Jay Gould was in a dress with fluted sleeves and a large black straw hat. Mrs. Stephen Riviere, curator of the Toledo, O., museum was in black with a white overblouse, which looked cool. Mrs. Sol Hurok, wife of the famous American impresario, wore a fluffy and frilly organdie blouse with a black skirt and a large brimmed white straw hat. Mr. Allatini has been a patron of the arts and many artists were present.

EMILIE

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cox had as recent visitors, Mr. and Mrs. William Brannigan and daughters, Mary and Florence, Bristol.

Mrs. George Snyder spent several days with her parents in Lineboro, Md. George and Woodrow Snyder week-ended there.

UNDERGROUND LAKE IS DISCOVERED

BRIDFORD, Aug. 23.—Discovery of an underground lake, believed to be of vast dimensions, has stirred residents or communities near New Falls in Bedford county.

The find, by William S. Taylor, 27, and two friends, lends support to the legendary story of a mysterious subterranean lake which some people believe supplies the springs and wells of this neighborhood with cold, clear water the year around.

The family of W. I. Taylor, father of William and owner of the property, has for many years produced limestone from the rocky foundations near their farm, and recently an excavation disclosed an opening to a cave, 25 feet below the surface of the ground.

Down this hole, just large enough at the top for a man's body to pass through, William Taylor and his friends, Henry Schoenthal, 22, and Edgar Horne, 32, were lowered by ropes. They found a huge cave with large passages and caverns studded with beautiful stalactite and stalagmite formation.

The theory of some geologists is that the lake forms the largest body of water in Pennsylvania, stretching a distance of ten miles from the Taylor farm to the fish hatchery at Reynoldsville.

The lake was found by the young explorers about 100 feet below the ground. The water in it was clear and cold, like that of the spring and wells above. The three explored the cavern to a distance of about 1,500 feet and were unable to go further because of dangerous crags and pitfalls.

An exploration party may be formed to go further into the find. A collapsible boat may be used to navigate the lake, with coloring matter being placed in the water to help determine the source of the springs above.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Aug. 23.—A fight to the death between a weasel and a blacksnake near Camp Mahoning, on Little Mahoning Creek, Indiana county, afforded Vesper Smith, Punxsutawney Y. M. C. A. secretary, an interesting quarter-hour recently.

Hunting for turtles he heard a commotion on the opposite bank of the stream, and found a weasel and blacksnake in deadly combat.

The weasel had the four-foot-long snake by the tail. Every time the serpent tried to coil and strike the weasel backed away, hauling in the frantic reptile's tail.

For fifteen minutes the battle continued, the weasel gradually working its way up the snake's back. Then it seized the reptile by the neck and broke its back. Meantime the snake had coiled around the little animal, crushing its hindquarters.

The weasel tried to crawl away after its victory, but Smith ended its misery with a rifle bullet.

JOHNSTOWN, Aug. 23.—Irvin Leventry of Ryot, Bedford county, became seriously ill and had to go to the hospital—right in the middle of harvest time.

He worried and fretted and doctors said that didn't help his condition much.

Now he has received a letter saying the neighbors got together and did his work for him.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Anita Bell asked Judge Marion D. Patterson to allow her separate maintenance money because the apartment her husband provided was "little less than an attic—and too hot."

The Judge ruled: "It is the duty of the wife to go where the husband provides."

Mrs. Bell didn't wait to return to the hot attic. She fainted in the courtroom.

FRANKLIN: Miss Margaret Jones, of Franklin, and Charles Huesner were married in style. The couple rode to the Venango county court house for the ceremony in an ancient carriage that was the last word in magnificence in the way '90s. As a contrast friends and relatives rode behind in automobiles.

DEEDED COUNTY

TARENTUM, Pa. (INS)—Failure to receive $200 promised for a share of his property, Roy Ott, Fawn Township, farmer, planted himself in the path of a power steam shovel working on the $800,000 Freeport-Millertown road project and defied the county at large to proceed.

STILL LOVES THE SEA

BOSTON—(INS)—Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy under President Hoover, just can't keep away from the sea. Adams celebrated his 68th birthday at the helm of the yacht, one of the contenders for the honor of meeting the British challenger Endeavor.

THE NEW FORD V-8 TRUCK

USES NO MORE FUEL THAN A "4"

Gives you exclusive V-8 performance with proved 4-cylinder economy

THE acid test of ownership has decisively proved the rigid economy of the New Ford V-8 Truck. Truck operators all over the nation, engaged in every type of hauling and delivery service, have voiced their approval of V-8 economy with enthusiasm born of personal experiences.

Owners who have used Ford trucks before are reporting even greater mileage than their 4-cylinder trucks gave them. Operators who formerly used other makes are amazed at their savings in gasoline. All have discovered that it makes no difference whether you divide a gallon of gasoline into eight pints or four quarts. It's still only one gallon!

But the economy of the New Ford V-8 Truck goes beyond fuel savings. It includes low oil consumption, low-cost repairs, and an engine exchange plan that ends big overhead costs. And it sells for the lowest truck price in America. See your nearest Ford dealer—hear about the full-floating rear axle, 80-horsepower V-8 truck engine and many other features—101 in all. He will arrange to give you an "on-the-job" test with your own loads, with your own driver at the wheel. You'll be convinced!

DEAUVILLE IS ONE OF FIRST SPOTS VISITED AFTER PARIS SEASON

By Nadia de Beaud (I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)

PARIS—(INS)—The Paris season is at an end and with the hot days, everybody is fleeing the city streets. Tradition demands that Deauville be the first of the smart beaches to be visited annually, its geranium smothered lawns making it the most beautiful of all resorts. The Casino glitters dazlingly white in the sun, and the boardwalk boasts the pick of society, both men and women, vying to attain the most startling effect.

In striking contrast with these eccentric costumes was that of Madame Rene Lacoste, wife of the great tennis star. She was a symphony in pale blue in a LeLong ensemble, consisting of shorts, a vest and a foldover skirt. A big brimmed white hat with a touch of blue finished off this charming costume.

PENOLOGISTS TO MEET

NEW YORK — (INS) — Leading penologists and educators will participate in a conference of educational workers in correctional institutions to be held August 10th, Dr. N. L. Engelhardt, Professor of Education at Teachers College, Columbia University, announced here.

SHORT CUTS TO THE DINNER TABLE

By Vera A. Schneider
Tasty Cake Recipes for the

Picnic Basket

A frequent expression I have heard from tired, worn-out homemakers has been "If only I could get away from everything, just for a little rest."

Well, friend homemakers, it isn't always possible to get away from everything, is it? But it is possible to change our routine, just enough to give us the "little rest" our tired nerves cry for.

And rest doesn't always mean hours and hours of sleep. It means rest from the many inconsequential interruptions that seem to demand so much of our time, such as answering the doorbell, checking in the laundry, giving first aid to sister's bruised finger and helping Junior with his lessons. Oh, yes, there are countless reasons why homemakers so often feel the need of just that little rest. So, let's put just a little more effort in the work of today by cooking and preparing as much of tomorrow's food as possible, for I think it would be a fine idea to pack our little family together and get out where telephones will not annoy us and where doorbells are taboo. We'll hire ourselves forth to a secluded little spot in the open where the view will rejuvenate us. Also, where the children may romp unrestrained and get the benefit of a day in the sunshine.

While cake is not, of course, the first thing we serve on a day's menu, nevertheless, an outing is very incomplete without a good one at hand. So suppose I give you several cake recipes from which you may make a choice.

1 teaspoonful vanilla
½ cupful nut meats
Cream butter and sugar, add milk and sift dry ingredients into the mixture. Add flavoring and nut meats which have been dredged in the flour. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a sheet, layer or cup cakes in a 375 degree oven. If baked in loaf form bake in a 350 degree oven. Cover with any desired frosting.

Chocolate Layer Cake

2 cupfuls flour
6 tablespoonfuls butter
2 eggs
1 cupful milk
1 cupful sugar
4 teaspoonfuls baking powder
½ teaspoonful salt
1 teaspoonful vanilla
2 squares chocolate (unsweetened).

Cream butter and sugar, add melted chocolate, then egg yolks and milk. Sift dry ingredients into the mixture and add flavoring. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased layer cake pans and bake in a 375 degree oven.

Chocolate Frosting

3 tablespoonfuls butter
2 tablespoonfuls cream, 1 teaspoonful vanilla
1½ cupfuls sugar
2 squares chocolate (unsweetened).
Cut chocolate into small pieces, put into tumbler and place this in a pan of hot water over fire to melt. Cream butter thoroughly. Add sugar, one teaspoonful at a time. When half the sugar is used, add cream, vanilla and chocolate, and remaining sugar. Beat well. Do not ice until cake is cold.

DIXIE DUKES TO PLAY HIBERNIANS RETURN TILT

The Dixie Dukes, that fast colored aggregation that exhibited their baseball talent on Leedom's field several weeks ago, will again be present on the local lot, playing the Hibernians in a return match.

The Dukes on their last appearance gave a splendid performance and beat the Hibs, but Manager McDevitt, confident of scoring a win over the colored boys, booked a return match after quite a bit of difficulty and is all set to turn back the Dixie boys.

McDevitt is undecided on his starting pitcher but it most likely will be Roy Devlin. Devlin in his last hill start set back the Twilight League All-Stars in fine style.

Game will begin at six o'clock prompt.

President of the Lower Bucks County League, David Landreth, last night announced that all the umpires of the circuit will be given a chance to work in the series which will begin on Saturday. The first game will be played at Hulmeville while the second comes to Bristol on Sunday. All games must start promptly at three o'clock.

HIBBS LEADS BATSMEN IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Fred Hibbs, manager and first baseman of the Edgely Braves, captured the batting crown of the Bristol Twilight League for the second time in his career when he finished the present season with an average of .405. This average topped "Monk" Oriola, St. Ann's player, by fifteen points. Third place went to "Johnny" Dougherty, catcher of the Edgely team, who finished with .388.

Hibbs is the only Twilight League player to cop the batting championship more than once. In 1930, playing with the Independents, he led the hitters with an even .500. Other leaders have been: 1929, Edward Roe, St. Ann's, .541; 1931, Paul Barrett, Federals, .509; 1932, Pompeio Piazza, Edgely, .369; 1933, F. Fields, St. Ann's, .500.

Joe Dougherty, backstop for the Hibernian team, garnered the most hits with twenty-one to his credit, and John Dougherty, of Edgely, scored the most runs, 20. Joe Dougherty also stepped to the plate the most number of times, 66.

The averages as compiled by Secretary Thomas Juno for those players who participated in five games or more are as follows:

Y. M. A. ENTERS CANOE RACE; TO BE AT NIGHT

On Wednesday night, August 29th, Clementon Lake Park, at Clementon, N. J., will stage canoe races and some of the best paddlers in the country will compete at this affair.

This will be the first time that canoe races have been staged under arc lights.

The boats used in these races differ greatly from the ordinary canoe, being constructed of cedar, 15 feet in length and thirty inches wide and ten inches in depth. When the paddler takes his position in these racing boats he only has three inches of freeboard before the boat will take in water and submerge, therefore these paddlers must not only be good strong paddlers but also very good at balancing their boat while racing. In the single blade events the contestants assume a kneeling position and it is indeed a beautiful sight to see the four-man boat coming down the course with four paddlers in kneeling position balancing their boat with the beat of the stroke hitting up around 60 strokes to the minute.

Entries have already been received from the Philadelphia Canoe Club, located on the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia, for years one of the outstanding paddling clubs in this vicinity, the Cacawa Canoe Club of Tacony, Philadelphia, and the Bristol Young Men's Association of Bristol.

In recent years the Cacawa Canoe Club has been runner-up for the National Canoe Championship and this club has always been noted for its Senior Four Crew, which was undefeated last season in any part of the country and romped off with the National Honors at the Century of Progress in Chicago. This year this Senior Four is being hard pushed by the Intermediate Four of the same club, the Intermediates having won the National Intermediate Title this year at Trenton and when these two crews meet at Clementon along with the crews of the Philadelphia Canoe Club and the Bristol Y. M. A., a thrilling battle is assured.

All races will be held in racing class canoe over the quarter mile course and will be under the supervision of the Middle States Division of the American Canoe Association. The management of the Clementon Lake Park will award gold, silver and bronze medals to the winners of first, second and third places in these events.

The climax of the evening will be the canoe tilting matches wherein teams composed of a paddler and a filer work out on each other, the filer of each crew standing on a small platform in the front of the boat, armed with an eight foot pole with padded end, with which he endeavors to knock his adversary overboard.

Schedule of events: 8.30 p. m., one man single blade race; 8.45 p. m., two men single blade race; 9.00 p. m., four men single blade race; 9.15 p. m., one man double blade race; 9.30 p. m., two men double blade race; 9.45 p. m., four men double blade race; 10.00 p. m., tilting contest.

Officials: Referee, Carl T. Majer, Vice-Commodore, Middle States Division of the American Canoe Association; Starter, Earl Kerber, Philadel-

EDGELY BRAVES ADD MEN'S CLUB TO LIST

The Edgely Braves added the Harriman Men's Club to their list of victims last night, nosing out the Sixth Warders, 3-2, in a closely-fought contest on the Braves' diamond. The game was nip and tuck from start to finish.

The fray was a hurler's match between "Mel" Wright, of the victors, and Danny Hines and Roy Dennen, of the losers. Wright had the upper hand throughout, fanning ten and allowing but four hits. He received ragged support throughout but was very effective in the pinches.

The Harriman team scored both its tallies in the second inning. Cahall opened with a hit and after Moore fanned, Ashby dropped Hines' fly. Dennen then singled both runners across the plate.

It was Turner Ashby who dealt the hard blows to the Sixth Warders. In the third, Ashby led off with a double and counted on Massilla's double. In the fourth, Turner started something by tripling with two outs and counting when Leo Hibbs duplicated the blow.

Reprimand To Officer Just, Says Mayor Stockham

"Concerning the charge that Lebegern used unnecessary force in arresting Anthony Mattis, it happened that

I saw Mattis' face the morning after he was arrested on a misdemeanor charge. A comparison of the physical make-up of Lebegern and Mattis would cause one to wonder why Lebegern found it necessary to strike his prisoner such a hard blow on the face, or, in fact, to hit him at all.

The case is closed so far as I am concerned. I believe it has already caused more agitation than the facts warranted. It was my duty to decide allegations against a police officer. I regard Lebegern as fortunate to escape with such a slight penalty as a mere reprimand."

ADD:

"THE SPIRIT OF SERVICE"

COMBINE large quantities of copper, iron, lead; add some carbon, nickel, aluminum, wool, cotton, silk; then a little silver and a trace of gold—

Combine these and a hundred other ingredients by the use of initiative, research, invention, experience.

That is the prescription for the construction of America's Bell telephone plant—the switchboards, vacuum tubes, wires, telephones, cables, coils, relays, jacks, plugs, batteries and a thousand and one other ingenious, intricate mechanisms.

But that is not telephone service.

Without the human touch the telephone system is an orderly but inanimate mass of complex equipment.

The quality of America's telephone service is the highest in the world because of the skill, the training, the efficiency, the courtesy, the initiative and the experience of the people who operate the high quality equipment.

THERE is something more in Bell service. It is the desire to serve—the spirit of service—on the part of the men and women of the Bell organization.

This desire has grown with the service. It is evident in the tone of voice, the general attitude of the telephone worker. It is seen in the action of the operator who sticks to her post in the face of danger, in the matter of fact manner of the repairman who faces the elements that "the service may go on". It has become a tradition in the telephone industry.

America leads in telephone service. This leadership will continue while initiative remains a dominant American characteristic. We continue to urge, in the American manner, a broader use of the service.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Associated with the Bell System — participating in and benefiting from the telephone research, telephone development and nationwide telephone experience which have given America the world leadership in telephone service.
